

PEACE MIRRORS PEACE.

BY ANN MAREE MILLER.

It is such a humbling experience for me to write and have people read my work. The passion I have for life has been up till now passionate to say the least. And for those whom I have had the honour of meeting, will know just how passionate I can be, some say 'intense.' We are so blessed in our lives to have the opportunity to learn so much about our Self, and others every day.

Last weekend I had the fortunate experience of attending the 2007 Australasian Integrative Medicine Association, (AIMA) Holistic Health Conference at The Blue Mountains. May I say what a beautiful place the Blue Mountains is. If you haven't already thought about this, please entertain the idea that Australia, in fact soooooo many countries on earth have really special places. The indigenous people of these countries know this already.

Why? Because they allow their Self, Spirit, God within, whatever term that suits your understanding of the Divine presence in life, to connect with ALL Life.

Western culture however, has progressively removed the concept of living 'off the land', and sought to mass produce, in quantities generally quicker than the land can replace with the appropriate nutrients, leaving the human mind to think "well I can make it myself." And therefore, humans create synthetic chemicals to replace mother nature's chemicals.

This doesn't stop with the food chain, this concept of Human's being more powerful than nature has extended to the very source of power that human's seek for survival.

Now the people of the planet are being told that the coal usage that has been so dominant in it's usage since the Industrial Age is now no good, because it is either 'running out', or it emits too much carbon emissions that are causing the global warming.

Therefore, for the last few decades or so, people have been told that another source of power is a better choose, that being Nuclear Power.

Well guess what, like the cigarette scandal that said 'smoking is safe' back in the middle of last century, this information of Nuclear power being safe, is also RUBBISH!

Now I know, before you put this paper down, let's think about the FACTS. And this information is from Dr Helen Caldicott, whom I was blessed to hear speak at the conference which I might add was predominantly professors and doctors.

Not saying they are any better than the lay person they are simply more informed when it comes to the study of the physical health of the body, and hopefully mental, and emotional too. It's so wonderful that the medical profession is shifting their awareness of the health need to the whole human experience; the physical, mental, and emotional care. Remember there is no need for spiritual healing, spirit is already pure. If you conceive that spirit is the spark or breathe of God.

This particular speaker, Dr Helen Caldicott a medical doctor who has been studying nuclear energy for 35 years and also winner of the Australian Peace Award Prize 2006, and the President of the Nuclear Research Institute in Washington DC, was asked in the early 1970's to report on a leaked document from an Adelaide water supply. It had been found that the water contained a chemical called Strontium 90. This radioactive substance had been the result of the fallout of the French atmospheric nuclear testing in the South Pacific.

It was stated that 'Stronium 90 in the radiation-laced rain could concentrate in milk, and young children are 10 to 20 times more radiosensitive than adults, and drinking this milk could develop bone cancer and leukemia later in life.

Radioactive iodine in the fallout also concentrates in food and causes thyroid cancer.

This paper went to the press, and it was 75% of Australians who told the French to leave, took them the court and the French had to find some where else to practice their bombing, thank-you Australians!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!

Sadly certain politicians could not see the devastation of health problems as a motivator for continuing this ground breaking policy (please excuse the pun), and mining and testing has continued in parts of Australia that many of us don't know about!
